

Vox's Guide to

Fashion is the foremost way humans communicate their unique personality and style despite the changes in fashion.

The demographic possibly most affected is teenagers, and many retailers make even the drabbest slob a fantastic fashion sophisticate. Read on.

Fashion, most of all, is about embracing your purchases and rocking them.

Cute sweater? Get a few inexpensive t-shirts to wear underneath, a complementary scarf and create a cool bohemian look. After all, scarfs can

Rilee Yandt/Photo editor
Vox Editors Clancy Magnuson and Conor Wigert show off some of this season's hottest styles, according to associates from River Park Square.

THE B.

For V

A basic blou

Black

H

One classic p

Black

For

Pea

Dark ri

White but

One pair str

One pair bla

Dress for success

As the work force draws nearer for the teen age group, professional dressing becomes a concern. The importance of appearing well dressed and successful for an interview can not be overstressed.

According to Gap associate Gary Nomura-Febus at River Park Square, wear three pieces if possible. This includes a bottom (pants or skirt), jacket and shirt.

You can also substitute a scarf or chunky jewelry as one of your pieces.

Gary also suggests wearing closed toed shoes, and for men - wear a tie.

This rule is applicable in every situation, even if the job you are interviewing for doesn't require it.

Don't chew gum, play with your cell phone or have any food or drink. You need to demonstrate complete interest in your interview and those interviewing you.

And always make sure to be friendly to those in the workplace.

They report back to the employers on your behavior.

Remember: you can't overdress!

Argyle-philes Magnuson and Wigert jump for joy over their obsession.