

Winter Fashion

personalities, without saying a word. Fashion can be easily suited to fit one's needs that occur every year.

to cater to this. Stores offer cheap alternatives to what the stars wear, and can provide tips from associates from Nordstrom and the Gap at River Park Square.

them. Buy something that can be used in multiple fashion scenarios.

and create a different look for every day of the week. Or, could buy a piece that can be manipulated into many positions, so you get many looks for your bread.

ASICS

Women

- any color
- black pants
- heels
- piece of jewelry
- black dress

Men

- coat
- skinny jeans
- button-up shirt
- straight trousers
- black leather shoe

Rilee Yandt/Photo editor
Gap associate Gary Nomura-Febus at River Park Square displays a few popular ensembles of the season.

Rilee Yandt/Photo editor

Winter Fashions

This winter season is all about taking the trends and making them your own.

Whether embracing popular ideas like neutral colors or cuts from the '70s, throw in your own personal touches to every ensemble.

Skinny pants for guys are making a resurgence this season along with bell-bottoms for girls.

Herringbone and tweed can be found in nearly every store this season. Mixing and layering these patterns and textures makes the most simplistic item unique.

Although matching colors is not a priority this season, make sure to keep the tone together.

Pay attention to detail! Add lots of personal touches like ruffles, scarves, jewelry or layering. A few fun things to experiment with layering are tights, scarves, jewelry and cardigans.

Use the classics which you already have in your closet and spruce them up with a splash of color from a hat or cardigan.

Another prevalent trend this season is one of social and political consciousness. Many outlets sell socially responsible items from organic or recycled cotton. If you purchase these creations you can look great and feel better knowing that you are supporting a sweat (shop)-free society.

A few other trends to be on the look-out for are bohemian patterns, plaids and tweeds, earthy hues, tonal tights, trousers and classic staples.

Styles can be found at virtually every retail store. To save money, shop off-season and head straight to the back of store. That's where retailers keep their sale items and often, the best find.